

Please take the feather ...

.... and hold it on the palm of your hand.

Can you feel it? Most people can't.

Now hold it against your cheek. Can you feel it now?

Parts of us are more sensitive than others to the light touch of the feather.

The touch of the spirit is often very light, too. Sensitivity to that light touch is not something we seem very good at teaching the average person in the pew. Perhaps that is why today's spiritual seekers find little they can connect with in church.

Sense & Sensitivity has been created by Chris and Sheila Chesterton to help people develop that sensitivity - and perhaps discover much more besides. It is for use with small groups. Because of its approach it can be used with both Christians and with spiritual seekers. All the Material for Sense & Sensitivity can be found on the internet.

The authors

Sheila Chesterton trained as a teacher. In recent years she has led a church plant on a Nottingham estate and has worked with prisoners, single mothers and as a trainer for school literacy volunteers. She is an accredited Godly Play story-teller.

Chris Chesterton spent eighteen years as a schools worker in Nottingham and then worked as Children's Officer for Southwell Diocese and for Gloucester Diocese. He is the author of a number of books of children's talks and assemblies and the creator of the groundbreaking the way 2 go. - a children's guide to Christianity.
